Personal Statement

I am a hard working studying that puts all my effort into the things I love. I believe I have excellent communication and interacting skills. Science fascinates me and I enjoy studying the human body. I have a great interest in learning more information and improve any flaws I have in studying.

My skills and interests have led me to love this career as I mentioned previously that biology takes a huge part of my interest in science. I am very excited to put the knowledge that the foundation programme have taught me into this degree.

Academic work

I find myself working best with presentations since they are funner to work on. GIC had taught me how to write essays efficiently. As well as, lab reports and how to write a lab manual.

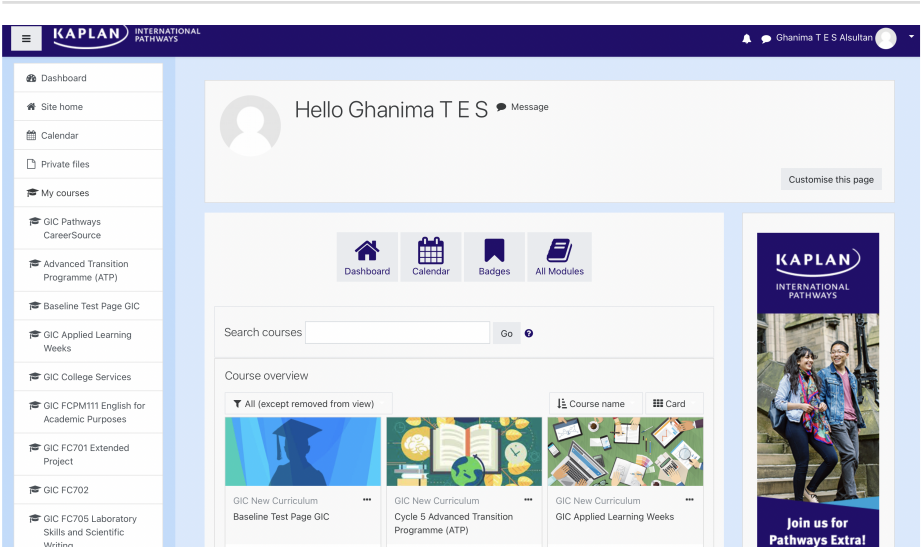

Lab report

Writing a lab report I found the most challenging since It was my first time writing a report but thankfully I did well for my first time.

Using the VLE

Having access to the VLE had made my life easier when submitting assignments but unfortunately I had a technical difficulty when submitting my final. Using the VLE to revise for my exams was very helpful and I found it simple to use.

Student services

I also started to comfortably ask help when needed. I would simply email or go to the student services office and would report any problem I was having.

Presentation

This is a presentation I did with my classmate. I had to interact with her and presented fluently to the class.

Independence

Studying abroad had taught me how to manage my money and time. As well as having the responsibility of renting the apartment.

Transport

I take the underground subway to go to the college everyday. I had the opportunity to learn how to use public transports including subways, train and bus.

Skills I have developed

At the age of 16, I rented my first apartment and this made me grow as a person to become more mature, responsible and independent and taught self awareness. As a minor I was declined housing even though I was living with a guardian. I was differed a handful of times due to the circumstance of living is under demand in Glasgow.

I managed to attend the gym while attending classes. I mamboed to do the using the subway as a fast form of transportation. The gym helped tame my stress at the times when I was stressed.

teamwork

I learned how to work in groups. During applied learning weeks I learned how to work in groups i am unfamiliar with. Additionally, I became self aware of how to take part in the group by completing my own work. With time my ability to work in groups became second hand nature

Hiking

During my stay I endured the activity of hiking. This was a new concept. I communicated with those around me, I learned how to overcome challenges and it tests my limits. It taught me taught me at times of burden to be patient.
